

67-HOUR RULE VIOLATIONS

REFERENCE GUIDE

67-HOUR RULE VIOLATIONS

UK students transferring in more than 67 credit hours from a 2-year institution will be flagged on the degree audit as incomplete.

The requirement “67 Hour Limit from 2-Year Colleges” will be listed under the “Graduation” area and identifies both how many hours over the 67-hour threshold the student is and all coursework marked from 2-year institutions.

⊕ 67 Hour Limit from 2-Year Colleges

This requirement has not been met.

✖ 67.00 or fewer credit hours are required—you completed 75.00 credit hours.

According to UK's transfer policies, transfer credit from courses you completed at two-year institutions is limited to a total of 67 semester credit hours. If you earned over 67 hours, your advisor can help you choose which courses to keep.

Courses that were excluded from applying here should appear in a separate area above labeled "Courses Not Relevant to Degree".

67-HOUR RULE VIOLATIONS

🕒 Excess Courses

This requirement has been met—hide details.

✔ 0.00 or more credit hours are required—you completed 57.00 credit hours.

The courses shown here are not applying toward any specific requirement in your degree program, but they still count toward your total number of credit hours.

Though the transcript will already reflect the exclusion of the excess hours, advisors must request the GPS team to mark the requirement as complete.

When determining which courses to exclude from applying for the student's degree, advisors may reference the last requirement listed in the "Graduation" area as "Excess Courses." This requirement lists coursework not currently being utilized to complete any degree requirement.

Send the UK equivalent course names to be excluded to the GPS team at

TEAM-GPS@lsv.uky.edu

and our team will notify you when this has been processed.

The excluded coursework will now appear under a new requirement, “Courses Not Relevant to Degree,” and will not be allowed to apply to any requirement
on the audit.